Making the most of your home

Economic climate always dictates decisions on moving or improving our homes and with the current situation with us all aware of the downturn in the housing market more people are turning to home improvement rather than moving.

One of the most popular ways of investing and making the most of your home with additional room space is an extension.

Apropos Tectonic are enjoying a very busy year with customers choosing its stunning architectural glass and aluminium structures. Stylish glass extensions, roof lights and large bi-folding doors can change a room completely, enhancing both light and living space.

Mindful of being able to keep cool in the summer yet retaining heat in the winter with thermal efficiency and energy efficient glass, Apropos specialise in using only the highest quality of materials to reduce heat loss and reflective UV quality glass for sun exposure.

Customers who don't have space for a full-size extension can still improve their homes by choosing more modest bespoke additions in the form of a glass roof or glazed return.

Even old favourites like the French Doors can be replaced with stunning bi folding doors to really open out a room, letting the outside in and streamlining your entertaining and dining space into the garden.

A tailored structure where the design is produced to suit your exact requirements will enhance your property and be a true investment for the future.

Apropos Tectonic are always on hand to provide expert advice and quotes.
