INTERIORS
By Ellen Gray

Light fantastic

Linking house and garden, glass delivers space, sunshine and style.

Above: An Apropos kitchen extension to a grand bungalow features folding sliding doors leading to a sheltered terrace.

Right: A bespoke hardwood conservatory by Mazolowski & Murray, painted a subtle slate grey, gave the homeowners a year round room for living and entertaining.

Far right: Apropos provided the perfect link between a thatched cottage and its barn.

Conservatories have a transformative power to bring the outside in.

The right design can turn an awkward corner into a spectacular room.

Top: Mazolowski & Murray's conservatory designs are sensitive to the character of the house. Here, an elegant garden room complements a period home.

Top right: Extra living space for the family – another Mazolowski & Murray creation.

Right: A glass roofed extension added by Apropos to a listed property makes room for a new, relaxed dining area for day or night.

Above: Made in solid timber, an orangery by Midlothian building firm P&M Sinclair defies the weather in style.
